Stewardship Reflection

"Do nothing out of selfishness; rather, humbly regard others as more important than yourselves..." Philipians 2:3

Pride and ego are hard things to control. We see how others act or dress and think we are superior to them. We idolize our own self-image. But, if we truly believe everything is a gift from God, we recognize all the people that God has put in our lives as gifts! We are grateful for how they enrich our lives. Pray every day for the people in your life: your family, your friends and those who make you angry.

For a synodal Church
communion | participation | mission

The synodal journey is a process of discernment and search for the will of God, not only on a personal basis but also as a Christian community. The term "synodal" is derived from the Greek word "synodos," which means the path that members of the People of God walk together 1. It involves the participation, listening, and discernment of all members of the Church 2. Pope Francis has emphasized the concept of synodality as the key to his vision of the ministry of the Bishop of Rome and the foundation of his ecclesiological perspective 2. It represents a new phase of reception of Vatican II and introduces a dynamic of innovation into the Church 2. The synodal journey is an opportunity for the Church to engage in dialogue, foster communion, and promote participation and mission 2. It encourages a discovery of how the Spirit is active in the life of the community, inviting new ways of understanding and interaction beyond established norms

After an ecumenical prayer vigil in St. Peter's Square Sept. 30, all the members of the synod -- which include lay women and men for the first time -- will spend three days together on retreat outside Rome. They will return to the Vatican for the opening Mass of the synod Oct. 4 and will celebrate Mass together before beginning work on each main synod theme: synodality, communion, mission and participation.

Pope Francis told reporters in early September the synod would be very open with regular updates from the synods communication commission, but it is necessary to safeguard the religiosity and safeguard the freedom of those who speak, so apparently synod members will be asked not to share with reporters the contents of their own or other members remarks to the synod.

The notoriously stuffy atmosphere characterized by hours of speeches in the Vatican Synod Hall will disappear. The synod assembly will be held in the much larger Vatican audience hall with its rows of seats removed to make way for round tables to promote constant interactions.

More of the work will be conducted in small groups, organized by language and by the themes of interest to participants. The plenary sessions are designed for a general introduction of the various themes and for reporting the results of the small group discussions. Members will not stay in the same small groups throughout the assembly but change when the themes they are working on change. According to the working document, "the last segment of the work of the assembly will be dedicated to gathering the fruits of the process, that is, discerning the paths we will continue to walk together. The assembly will consider ways to continue reading the experience of the people of God, including through promoting the necessary in-depth theological and canonical studies in preparation for the second session of the synodal assembly in October 2024.

Please pray for all of the participants that they will be led by the Holy Spirit in their discernment as they search for the will of God during this Synod.
